Great! E-mail would be fine – probably easiest for both of us. The traditional procedure around here is to receive things through the postal mail, then the folks who handle incoming items document receipt and the date it came in, but I can take care of making sure all that information is properly entered in our tracking database.

Thanks,

Natalie

Natalie,

Analysis data came back from lab yesterday. Finished the software estimates late yesterday with Trinity Consultants. Putting it all together now with cover letter.

Do I understand correctly that the information needs to go on disc or thumb drive and mailed?
Or can I send by email?

Thanks,

Dylan Foglesong
